

DOUG HANSON

Katy, Texas

Our speaker today was born and raised in Katy, Texas, a small town west of Houston, Texas where he continues to live today with his wife of 22 years and their four children. He was an athlete through college, playing football at Sam Houston State University while earning a Bachelor's degree in computer science. After he started his career and family, Doug went back to school on weekends and earned his Master's degree from the University of Houston Executive MBA program, where he graduated with honors.

Prior to being a speaker and consultant, Doug started his business career as a show director for ESPN sporting events. Then, in the 1990's Doug worked for nine years in the computer industry as an enterprise sales and marketing professional for Toshiba, Texas Instruments and Hewlett Packard, achieving top sales honors each year. During the Internet boom, Doug was on the original team that started Bamboo.com, a leading edge marketing company that grew to be the largest provider of on-line video content in just two years.

In 1994, Doug created his company, Doug Hanson Performance Group, and committed his life to helping people and organizations achieve their full potential by improving their mindset, energy, skills, and connection. His speaking career catapulted to a new level when Tony Robbins invited Doug, not once, but seven consecutive years, to be a featured facilitator and speaker at his famous annual event, Life Mastery University in Hawaii. In 2004, Doug was sought out by the NFL to address and energize the 6,000 volunteers involved in Super Bowl XXXVII at the pre-game rally held in Houston's Reliant stadium two weeks prior to the big game.

Today, Doug is nationally and internationally recognized as a speaker, consultant and peak performance coach with customers in the United States, United Kingdom, Spain, Canada, Mexico, and Singapore.

Everyone who meets Doug immediately recognizes his energy and passion for life, his humble spirit, and his genuine desire to make a difference.

Please give a warm Client welcome to our speaker, Doug Hanson.
